Summer in the Hamptons has three beginnings. The first is Memorial Day when over the long weekend people come out and open house and enjoy the excitement of new restaurants and shops. The second is late in June, when, as per the calendar, summer official begins. The third, and possibly most important, is July 4th. The summer colony comes in July and stays through Labor Day dashing from parties to the beach and back to Hamptons rentals that rival the White House. We looked for the most amazing properties in the Hamptons real estate portfolio and found five completely over-the-top estates each with a myriad of amenities to keep any brood or entourage more than happy during the dog days of summer.
