Maureen O'Hara, Licensed Associate Real Estate Broker, has joined Town & Country, the East End's largest, most comprehensive locally owned and operated, independent real estate agency.

"Maureen O'Hara graduated from Grace Business Institute with further studies at Hunter College and Fordham University," noted Judi Desiderio, Town & Country CEO and Founder. "She is a Certified Residential Broker (CRB)."

The native New Yorker resides in East Hampton and has been surpassing her client's expectations for more than 30 years. O'Hara's real estate expertise extends to sales, marketing, buyer agency, home building, contracting and real estate management.

While buying a home can be a nerve-racking process, especially in the Hamptons where the market can be challenging, O'Hara strives to make it a stress-free, seamless experience. "Real estate is a relationship based business and as a true 'people' person, my favorite part of being a Realtor is the opportunity to make personal connections with clients and assisting in making their dreams and goals come true by being your advisor, advocate and guide through the entire real estate process," shared O'Hara.
