

Real Estate Roundtable: Falling For Fall On The East End

Taylor Vescey | October 19, 2022

As the air turns crisp and the leaves begin to fall, the change of season ushers in some of the best of what the East End has to offer. From pumpkin picking to harvest festivals, hot cider made from orchard-fresh apples to hikes as the leaves change colors, there is plenty to do this time of year. We were curious: What activities do real estate agents in the Hamptons and on the North Fork particularly look forward to this fall?

Judi Desiderio, Town & Country Real Estate

“Sweater weather is one of my favorites. The light is amazing on the East End. The water is still warm and the fishing is at its peak. When my husband, John, comes home with fish we light the fireplace and enjoy dinner with family and friends. For me, harvest season is heaven since I’m a gardener and a baker. I also get to try new recipes for soups and stews. I enjoy sitting out back watching the water and the birds. There was a family of dolphins in Gardiner’s Bay last week. The sea life lately has been spectacular.”

Nicole B. Brewer, Town & Country Real Estate

“Fall is fabulous on the North Fork! There’s nothing like a morning run along Oregon Road in Cutchogue when the air is crisp and the mist is coming off the fields. It’s so calm and peaceful and the best way to reset after a crazy week. It’s harvest time at the vineyards and I like to sample what the winemakers have been working on at Peconic Bay Vineyards, Macari Vineyards, and Pugliese Vineyards. Mid-week is the best time to get a reservation – both Legends and aMano restaurants are great places to nab a large table to catch up with friends when our weekends are so busy. I truly enjoy hunting for delicious bites and unique gifts at the farmers market and local farmstands — you never know what you’ll find, and I love to cook what’s in season. And there’s nothing quite as lovely as a North Fork sunset...those are perfect year-round.”
